PROPWR Signs New Power Contracts to Commit Approximately 230 Megawatts to Targa Resources Corp.

MIDLAND, Texas, September 22, 2026, (Business Wire) – ProPetro Holding Corp. (NYSE: PUMP) (“ProPetro”) today announced that its PROPWR business unit has entered into new contracts with a subsidiary of Targa Resources Corp. (NYSE: TRGP) (“Targa”), a large energy infrastructure company, for which PROPWR will commit approximately 230 megawatts (“MW”) of power generation capacity. With the addition of these contracts, total capacity committed under contract for PROPWR now stands at approximately 510 MW, which also reflects previously announced oil and gas power capacity that is no longer committed under contract. This recontracting allows PROPWR to redeploy the associated capacity to Targa and to make additional megawatts available for potential data center deployments in 2027 and beyond.

These long-term contracts will provide behind-the-meter power to support Targa’s continued investment in natural gas processing infrastructure in the Permian Basin, with full deployment expected in early 2028.

Importantly, this infrastructure supports continued growth in U.S. natural gas production needed to serve strong and growing demand for natural gas, including:

- Growing liquefied natural gas (“LNG”) export demand along the U.S. Gulf Coast;
- Increasing investment in power generation to serve the rapid buildout of data center and artificial intelligence infrastructure; and
- Additional grid-connected gas generation resources needed to meet load growth and improve reliability across U.S. power markets.

Sam Sledge, Chief Executive Officer of ProPetro, commented, “We are thrilled to establish a new long-term relationship with Targa, one of the premier midstream operators in the country. These contracts reflect the significant and growing demand for reliable, behind-the-meter power across the energy value chain, and the essential role midstream infrastructure plays in moving Permian gas to various end markets. Targa is a large, investment-grade counterparty, and these awards highlight PROPWR’s ability to deliver dependable power at scale. We view this as the start of a durable partnership and expect to be a reliable power provider to Targa for many years to come as they continue to expand their infrastructure footprint.”
